

Jario™ takes home Scottish Software Award for most innovative product of the year 2003 - 2004

Glasgow, United Kingdom, --Thursday, July 1st – Attended by industry leaders from the likes of Sun Microsystems, JP Morgan and the Kelvin Institute: the 2004 Scottish Software Awards cemented their position as one of the UK's most respected ceremonies for recognising success in the software industry.

Beating off competition from more than 70 vetted entries, Jario took home the prize for producing Scotland's most innovative software product of the year.

Chris Brighthouse, CEO and Founder, collected the award on behalf of the international Jario development team. "For a company to win an award like this so early in its history is a loud and clear mark of recognition for our team. I hope I get the opportunity to come back in future years to hand this same award on to other new Scottish companies inspired by Jario's success."

Sponsored by Scottish Enterprise and managed by Targeting Innovation, the Scottish Software Awards are an annual event designed to raise the profile of the industry in the local community. At the same time, the awards provide a quality platform for firms to refer to when promoting their products around the world.

About Jario™ Ltd.

Jario™ launched New Years Day 2003 to create software that allows employees to work in the best and most flexible ways possible while allowing management to meet their data control and compliance targets seamlessly and with zero operational friction.

Jario™ is a trademark or registered trademark for Jario™ Ltd in the EU, US and other countries.

PR Contacts for Press and Analysts

Jario™ Ltd.

Chris Brighthouse

chris.brighthouse@jario.com

+44-(0)7771 911015